QUEEN OF BELGIUM KILLED

ASTRID AUTO WRECK VICTIM; KING SUFFERS MINOR HURTS

Body of Swedish Princess, Mother of Three Small Children, Hurlled Against Tree as King Loses Control of Heavy Vehicle.

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 29.—For the second time in two years, tragedy struck the royal family of Belgium today when Queen Astrid, beautiful blonde princess of Sweden, was killed in an automobile accident which also resulted in serious injuries to her husband, King Leopold III.

The Queen met her death when a massive, high powered car driven by the King himself skidded off the road near Kussnacht along Lake Lucerne.

Hurtled Against Tree

She was thrown from the car. Her body hurtled through the air and crashed into the trunk of a huge tree overhanging the water's edge.

Her death was instantaneous.

It was just eighteen months ago that Leopold's father, the late King Albert, fell to his death while climbing a mountain peak in a range of the Ardennes mountains known as the Marche Des Dames.

As with his daughter-in-law, death came to him suddenly and accidentally. The grief Europe felt with the loss of Belgium's great wartime king was echoed with the loss of the young queen, whose democratic demeanor and flashing smile had endeared her to the nation which became hers by marriage and adoption.

King Leopold himself, who was driving the car when the accident occurred along a narrow tree bordered road, apparently was seriously injured.

The King was rushed to a hospital at Kussnacht, where preliminary examination indicated he had suffered a fracture of the jaw.

With his queen, he was hurled from the front seat of the low-slung, powerful car, which after careening across the road, crashed head-on into a tree and then plunged into the waters of Lake Lucerne.

The chauffeur, who was riding in the rear seat while King Leopold drove, also was thrown out of the car, but was believed to have escaped serious injury.

Taken to His Wife

But the young monarch, who on his coronation asked only to be permitted to continue the democratic rule which his father inaugurated, was painfully hurt. His head was cut severely and his broken jaw a cause of great pain.

His only thought, however, was to be near the body of his wife, still almost a bride, and when his injuries had been tended, he was taken to her side.

The body of the young queen has been rushed to the villa "Haslihorn" in the hamlet of Horn near Lucerne, where for the

Warren R. Cramer

Warren R. Cramer, 17, son of an Oakland, Cal., dentist, has admitted, according to police, that he set fire to 24 buildings in Denver, Colo., and had committed several robberies of offices and rooming houses. Among the buildings in which he is alleged to have started fires were Denver's new $5,000,000 city hall, police station and public library building.

Ted Lewis' New Picture Booked Here On Sept. 15

Harry "Chic" Howard, manager of the Cliftona theatre, made an announcement Thursday that all Circleville has been waiting to hear. Ted Lewis and his new show, "Here Comes the Band," has been booked for a 3-day run at the Pinkney-st picture house starting Sept. 15.

Howard received confirmation Thursday morning of the dates. Since the picture is being released only Aug. 30 booking it here so early is a tribute to the theatre management.

While Ted has been in several shows, "Here Comes the Band" is reputed to be his best.

In the picture he is named Ted Lowry. In the supporting cast are Virginia Bruce, Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton, Harry Stockwell, Donald Cook, Spanky McFarland, Bert Roach and many others.

The picture was produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and directed by Paul Sloane. Songs include "Headin' Home," "Tender is the Night," "Roll Along Prairie Moon," and "You're My Thrill."

According to "The Motion Picture Herald," which reviews releases in the film capital, the picture is for man, woman and child. "It is not only satisfactory audience entertainment," the magazine says, "but in title, cast names, motivating story idea, substantiating specialties and unique production values, it provides a wealth of showmanship exploitation material."

In the yarn Happy and Piccolo Pete (Ted Healy and Nat Pendleton) are a pair of taxi-driving doublecrossers. Ted Lowry (Ted Lewis) directed a military band during the war. Happy back home discovers Ollie Watts (Harry Stockwell), a young singer, whom he is convinced needs only a break to "make it."

An audition is arranged with plenty of fun provided. A romantic twist with Ollie and Margaret (Virginia Bruce) adds the theme. Watts writes a song that is stolen from him but Happy, Piccolo and Ted scheme to recover it for him. A court room scene with negroes, Indians, hill billys and others combining to aid Watts is a highlight with the song finally being recovered from the thieving publisher. The end is the usual one of hugs and kisses and a long happy life.

Healy and Pendleton provide the comedy. Ted introduces the new number, "You're My Thrill" and turns on with his classy band while Stockwell, a newcomer and a real singer, scores with several other numbers.

John Hamilton

"G" men in an abandoned sandpit in Kane-co, Ill., near Aurora, about 30 miles west of his old Chicago haunts. Above the rude grave was an amateurish placard bearing the legend: "Do Not Remove."

Thought Slain In 1934

Justice agents believe Hamilton was fatally shot in the spring of 1934, either at the gun battle at the Little Bohemia roadhouse near Rhineland, Wis., or in a subsequent gun battle at St. Paul.

All his pals in the Dillinger gang followed him to an untimely death at the hands of federal agents within the year.

John Dillinger, reputed chief of the gang went down in front of a Chicago movie house while attempting to pull his "rod."

Lester M. Gillis, better known as Baby Face Nelson was fatally shot Nov. 27, 1934 at Barrington, Ill., in a battle in which Agents Carter Baum and H. E. Hollis were slain.

J. P. Chase, partner of Nelson in the Barrington battle, is serving a term in the Ohio State Penitentiary.

MOUNT OF PRAISE BEGINS LAST HALF

Sessions at the Mount of Praise reached the halfway mark Wednesday evening and officials reported a larger attendance so far this season than ever before. They estimated 2,100 persons attended the meetings Wednesday.

Although the camp is owned and operated strictly by the Church of Christ in Christian Union officials have made an effort to make the sessions undenominational. Members of all churches are welcome to the meetings, they announced.

Officials today were arranging an interesting program for Saturday and Sunday and making plans to accommodate the 17,000 crowds expected at the meetings. Saturday will be Missionary Day and they hope to secure a number of returned missionaries as speakers. Rev. Charles L. Slater of Pasadena, Calif., will be in charge of the missionary program.

Latest returns gave White 180-756 votes, his opponent, Judge Paul B. Johnson of Hattiesburg, 167,504.

LEGION RAPPED BY VET CHIEF

Van Zandt Blames American Legion for Failure to Obtain Bonus Payment.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Drums of discord rumbled today between the camps of the nation's two big veterans' organizations—the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Trouble has been brewing between the two for years. It flared into opposition during the recent bonus battle in congress. Today, it was out in the open, and bitter.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars under their national commander, James E. Van Zandt, signalled the opening of a ripping attack on the Legion with a lengthy statement charging the Legion commander, Frank Belgrano, and his colleagues with failure of a bill paying the soldiers' bonus.

This is to be followed by a national speaking tour which Van Zandt will conduct. The tour, it was learned, will open with an address in Findlay, Ohio.

FEAR EFFORT TO STOP HUEY LOST

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—A plan to muzzle Huey Long in the Senate by changing the rules to outlaw one-man filibusters stirred up a lot of political wrangling today, and indications were it will eventually be discarded.

It is conceded a majority of Democratic and Republican senators would give a lot to have some kind of gag rule that could be used against the Kingfish, but they are not willing to sacrifice their own right to filibuster just to stop Huey.

WIDOW TO RECEIVE ESTATE OF ROGERS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 29.—Mrs. Betty Blake Rogers, widow of Will Rogers, famed stage, screen and radio comedian-philosopher, today had been named executor without bond in the will which Rogers signed only 12 days before he left on his fatal airplane vacation to Alaska with Wiley Post.

The petition for probate of the will was presented by Max Felix, attorney for Mrs. Rogers and her co-executors, Oscar Lawler a close friend and J. K. Blake, brother-in-law of Rogers.

Although the estate which Rogers left in its entirety to his widow is expected to exceed $5,000,000 the petition for probate merely set out the value as "in excess of $10,000."

It was said $262,500 worth of aviation hazard insurance carried by the homespun philosopher with Lloyds of London, probably will be paid to Mrs. Rogers sometime this week.

NEW PROJECTS BEING DRAWN

Deercreek Trustees File Two Requests; Six Projects Are Listed For City.

Deercreek-twp trustees filed two projects with the Federal Relief office here Thursday to be listed under WPA.

The projects include the widening, straightening and ditching of Walston road for a distance of one mile, and repainting of the township hall in Williamsport.

These projects are the first to be listed since the meeting of township officials Monday night in the courthouse with representatives of the district WPA office in Chillicothe.

Haste Is Urged

With the deadline for the WPA schedule as Sept. 12, all subdivision officials have been asked to file projects that will provide labor for men now on direct relief. Labor on the projects will be handled through the National Reemployment office. Projects must be in the Columbus WPA office on Sept. 12 and in the hands of Washington officials by Sept. 16, according to L. L. Henninger, Chillicothe district administrator. He explained the administration now has about two weeks to accomplish a task planned for a five week period.

Four county projects had been listed under PWA but Howard Sweetman, county surveyor, did not know what action would be taken on them until he had conferred with WPA officials about a transfer to the new program.

The projects included additions to the courthouse and county children's home and construction of two bridges, one over Pike hole near Whisler on the Hayesville-Adelphi road, and the other over Hargus creek on the Island road. Plans have not been prepared for the additions.

Six projects were listed under WPA in this county previous to the meeting Monday night. They include remodeling of the High-st school building; grading and filling the yard at Berger hospital; installation of a new floor and painting at the fire department; completion of the canal project, and the improvement of Crown-over road in Perry-twp and Thompson road in Deercreek-twp.

PROJECTS NEEDED

Director in Chillicothe for Conference

Pickaway county's relief situation took on a serious aspect Thursday noon when O. S. Coffey, local director, received notice the county's allotment for September would be $1,960.

He explained he had received a number of reports from clients about the rumors. "The unemployed league has absolutely nothing to do with relief orders," he stated.

bus Friday. His opinion was a large majority of the relief cases would be turned back to subdivisions.

Food, Clothing Only

Last month the local office cut relief orders to food and clothing under an allotment of $7,152. In July about $14,000 was spent for federal relief work in the county.

Mr. Coffey also planned to investigate an allotment of $25,656 given Pickaway-co under a huge federal work-relief melon cut in Washington today. A federal fund of $2,653,421 was allotted to Ohio to which $2,000,451 is pledged by sponsors of projects.

Neither Mr. Coffey nor County Surveyor Howard Sweetman knew the projects for which the fund was allotted. Reports from Washington stated the fund was to be used for community sanitation programs.

HAUPTMANN'S LAWYER SAYS INFANT LIVES

Fischer Basing Defense On That Belief; Denies San Quentin Report.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29—All efforts to obtain a new trial for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted of kidnapping and murdering Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., are to be based on the assumption that the Lindbergh child is still alive, C. Lloyd Fisher, of Flemington, N. J., one of the Hauptmann defense staff said here today.

Fisher, here for conferences with Hauptmann's sisters, Mrs. Emma Gloeckner, and her attorney, Vincent Marco, declared it has always been his belief that the body identified as that of the Lindbergh child, was that of some other infant.

Denies Rumors

The Hauptmann attorney will go to San Francisco in a few days he said, but denied emphatically reports from New York to the effect that a convict in the San Quentin prison in California had supplied him with valuable evidence concerning the whereabouts of the Lindbergh child.

"I know absolutely nothing about any San Quentin convict," Fischer declared.

He refused to amplify his statement that an appeal for a new trial, if the New Jersey court of appeals denied the application now before it, would be based on the belief the Lindbergh child is alive.

"It has always been my contention that the Lindbergh child is alive," was all Fischer would say, besides declaring the case would be taken to the U. S. supreme court if necessary.

Hamilton lived to be 35 years old, and was the senior partner and reputed brains of the Dillinger gang. He was perhaps the most thorough and intelligent bank robber in the country, according to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the justice department division of investigation.

He did not rely on machine produced maps. He made his own and for the front. "Right away," was Gibbons' reply and arrangements were made for him to sail Saturday on the Italian liner Rex for Naples.

Now 49 years old, the rugged six-foot Gibbons accepted the assignment to cover another war as matter-of-factly as if he were told by his city editor to do a story on a fire.

Gibbons knows what war is like. He has paid a price for his military experience. His left eye was shot away and his left arm drilled twice by German machine gun bullets in Belleau Wood, near Chateau-Thierry, in June 1918, during the World War when he was one of eighteen correspondents attached to G. H. Q. of the American Expeditionary Force. That's why a linen oval patch now covers his left eye-socket.

Feeling of Regret

"I realize the news possibilities of this Ethiopian assignment but at the same time I have a feeling of regret as I pack up to go on it," said Gibbons today. "I can never forget the cheer that went up along the front lines and, in fact, around the world when the Armistice was signed on November 11, 1918. I can remember vividly how sick and tired everybody was of war."

"So now it's rather sad to contemplate that Italian boys who were born along about that time in 1918 are going down to Ethiopia to meet the fate that befell so many heroic young soldiers in the war that was to end all wars."

marked every mile of the territory in which the gang was to operate. He left nothing to chance, but forced his men to rehearse their proposed robbery for weeks and studied every possibility for escape.

"In spite of this we got him," Hoover commented.

Hamilton was wanted for the killing of Patrolman William Shanley at Chicago Dec. 14, 1933. He also was reputed to have been the leader of the gang which escaped from the Indiana state penitentiary at Michigan City, and freed John Dillinger from the Allen-co jail at Lima, O.

It was during this delivery that Sheriff Jesse Sarber was killed.

With Hamilton in these daring exploits were such characters as Harry Pierpont, Russell Clark, Charles Makley, and Edward Shouse.

ASTRID AUTO WRECK VICTIM

past few weeks the royal couple had been vacationing.

His head swathed in bandages and still dazed by the tragedy, King Leopold walked painfully Leopold lost control of the car while rounding a sharp bend on the narrow road which runs along the bank of the calm blue lake.

Peasants residing in the tiny hamlet of Merli Chachen, which borders the famous body of water, were the first on the scene.

They picked up the shattered body of the queen and attempted to aid Leopold and his chauffeur. It was apparent immediately that Astrid, whose head struck the trunk of the tree with terrific impact, had died immediately from a fractured skull.

The accident occurred in broad daylight shortly before 10 o'clock in the morning. The royal couple had left their villa early, planning a ride through the beautiful countryside. While Leopold is not regarded as a reckless driver, he enjoys driving fast and the car was believed proceeding at a rapid pace when the accident happened.

Vacationing in Alps

For the past few weeks, Queen Astrid and King Leopold had been vacationing in the Swiss and Italian Alps. Not long ago they made a difficult ascent of one of the Dolomite peaks, which the late King Albert himself always liked to climb, and visited a stone memorial placed on the spot to commemorate the monarch's climb.

It was in Switzerland that Leopold, then crown prince, learned of the death of his father in February, 1934.

Switzerland, closely akin to Belgium in language, keenly felt the shock of the tragedy. Queen Astrid was a popular visitor, her ready smile and democratic attitude endearing her to all who met her. In Geneva, where world statesmen are gathering for the League of Nations council session summoned to consider the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, news of her sudden death came as a great shock.

Leopold and Astrid were married in Brussels amid great pomp on November 10, 1926. At the time of her marriage, Astrid was 21. She came to Belgium direct from her native Stockholm, where for many years rumors had been rife linking her romantically with the Prince of Wales.

Three children survive her.

It was left to King Leopold himself to break the news of the Queen's death to his five-year-old son, who with the eight-year-old Princess Josephine accompanied his parents to Switzerland.

The couple's youngest child, Prince Albert, fourteen months old, remained in Brussels, through the gates of the estate and gazed upon the features of Astrid. He bore up bravely, but the enormity of the tragedy, following as swiftly upon the loss of his father, obviously affected him greatly.

The only witness to the tragedy was the chauffeur himself, but his own injuries and the shock of the accident prevented him from telling a coherent story. It was apparent, however, that King

ITALY'S LARCENOUS AIMS
ITALY'S desires with respect to Ethiopia have up to now been somewhat vague. They are now revealed clearly. Italy demands the annexation of Ethiopia's lowlands and a protectorate over her highlands.
Fulfillment of these purposes would mean the extinction of Ethiopia as an independent country and the reduction of her king and people to the status of vassals.

This program of achievement has been formulated by Mussolini, notwithstanding that the rights of Ethiopia are protected by four treaties and its fulfillment would involve not only a violation of the treaties but also Italy's pledges to the League of Nations when she became a member and would flaunt world opinion against the oppression of the weak by the strong.

France and Great Britain, each with its own stake in the game in addition to a humane interest in the preservation of peace and the maintenance of the national existence of Ethiopia, continue their diplomatic maneuvers in the hope of averting the calamity of war.

But, contemplating the grim alternative, Sessie, as a man of pride and spirit, would doubtless accept war as the lesser of two evils.
He has said in the past that between the acceptance of a state of national degradation and slavery and war, considerations of national honor leave but one course to be followed. The Ethiopians are literally having war thrust upon them.

Italy, with so many advantages, should win a technical victory, even to the point of achieving all of her objectives, although there is no reason for believing that national an invincible military power which has on its records the debacle of Caporetta, where Italy lost 320,000 men in killed, wounded and missing, about 260,000 of whom fled in terror.

But, even though Italy should win, elemental justice would require that she pay heavily, even to the extent of revolution and economic ruin, for her modern emulation of the Goths and the Vandals.

COLLEGE ATTRACTIONS

MASS education may be right or it may be wrong, but as long as it is the theory of American secondary education its implication must as well be admitted and accepted. One of these implications is that it is desirable to bring boys to college; and in the face of that fact why should any effective means to that end—not in themselves
disreputable—be criticized?

But what takes American boys to college? He is an optimist indeed who thinks that any considerable numbers are driven there by the hunger and thirst for knowledge. Of how much hungering and thirsting after knowledge is the high school graduate capable? But it is the high school graduates who make up each successive freshman class.

The high school boy, however, does hunger and thirst after life, particularly life in its gaudier and more spectacular aspects. He drinks in avidly all that his elder brother, home on vacation, tells about the life of the campus. Do these tales deal with adventures in the search for knowledge? Most certainly, but not the knowledge dealt with in the lecture room and laboratory. It is more resplendent stuff than that. It is extra-textbook experiments that are revealed, the swaggering inroads of the curious young mind into new realms of experience that fascinate the listener at home.

The deep damnation of college football seems to be part of the credo of most critics of academic life in America, but football as a spectacle rather than as a form of exercise belongs to those experiments which attract young men to college and keep them there.

It would be a good idea for the people to refrain from eating ham.
If congressmen, now back home, observe any indulgence in the rare delicacy they are apt to decide that the share-the-wealth taxes aren't high enough.

Jim Braddock declares once again that he isn't afraid of Joe Louis and what he says is constitutional true. It is usually in the heart of the manager, who has a constitutional aversion to the cancellation of his meal ticket, that the element of fear finds an abiding place.

With an eye to making an interesting page of history, Mussolini will take his violin with him to Ethiopia, presumably to fiddle while Addis Ababa goes up in smoke.

Mr. Ford says what is done in Washington doesn't matter. But then, there's always a possibility that it might.

It seems unfair to call the hog a hog. He never eats more than he wants just because he is eating away from home.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. SHEPARD, Famous Bridge Teacher

SUBSTITUTING FOR DECLARER

BEFORE GOING home to dinner
many men drop into their clubs for a game of contract. In case they are concomitantly frequently a substitute
is required to finish the rubber. To enable a player to catch his regular train, I was asked to substitute for East in such a case, with dummy already spread and the 9 of spades the opening lead. I asked that bidding be repeated for my benefit.

♠ K Q J 10 8 5
♥ 7 6
♦ 9 8
♣ J 9 8

None
♠ Q J 5 2
♥ Q 7 4 3
♦ 2
♣ 7 6 4 2

♠ A 7 3 2
♥ A K 4
♦ A K 6
♣ A K 3

None
♠ Q J 5 2
♥ Q 7 4 3
♣ 7 6 4 2

Bidding had gone: West, 2-No
Trump; North, 3-Spades; East, 4-
Diamonds; West, 4-No Trump; East,
5-Hearts; West, 5-No Trump; East,
6-Diamonds; West, 7-Diamonds;
as being worth more than a
small slam at no-trumps, with 150 points for Aces. It surely would be worth more, provided the contract
could be fulfilled. How to make a grand slam was the burning question. If you have to glance twice at the holdings as a double-dummy
proposition you will realize that I had to look many times at the visible 27 cards before I played dummy's Ace of spades and discarded

my lowest club. North played his K of spades. All I knew was that North evidently held 5 or 6 more spades, while his partner as evidently did not hold 4 or more trumps,
as he would have doubled had he held more than 3 including J-10-9-X or any similar combination. How hearts and clubs were split was only a guess. There seemed only one way to play the hand in any event.

Both opponents followed suit on leads of dummy's Ace and K of trumps. Both of them followed suit on leads of dummy's two winning clubs, leaving unplaced the Q-J of that suit.

Both defenders followed suit on
leads of dummy's Ace and K of hearts. When North discarded his lowest spade on the third lead of hearts the missing J of third lead
was definitely located in South's hand, so that, player held both missing hearts, fortunately for East and West.

Of course dummy's low club was discarded on my fourth heart. Then South followed suit on a lead of my last which dummy ruffed. North's last club also fell. The discard of my lowest club on dummy's Ace of spades had done me no good. I could have twice ruffed spades, still picked up South's third trump and led off
my established baby club for the thirteenth trick, but such an attempt would have been foolhardy, like the 7-Diamonds contract.

After dummy's last trump had been used to ruff a club at the tenth trick I held for my last 3 cards only the Q-7-4 of trumps, while South had 2 Spades and the J of trumps. I ruffed a low spade. Picked up the only missing trump with my Q and showed my last trump for the thirteenth trick and grand slam.

THE DEVIL'S MANSION

By REX JARDIN

CHAPTER 33
AT LAST, after resting fully 10
minutes from his labors, Blair exerted all his strength and drew his arms from his body. The rope about his waist gave way. He was partly free! But his wrists were still tied,
although he could move them about more freely. He felt in his hip pocket for his knife. But it was gone! Someone had taken it.
He swore a little under his breath
as he started again to saw the rope against the rusty iron. It was perhaps an hour before he was able to burst the weakened bonds from his wrists. His hands were numb and swollen from his exertions, and they hurt him as he rubbed them smartly
together to restore his circulation.
A few minutes more and he was
free of the rope about his ankles.
He arose to his feet and stretched himself luxuriously. He could scarcely walk at first, but gradually the cramps left his muscles and he was able to move around. He was still a bit dizzy from the wound on his head.
Prowling about the place, he tried to make out the door through which Nita and his mysterious assailant
must have dragged him.
He found it, finally, a big oak door
which could be fastened by an iron bar from the inside. It was open,
now, however, and he stepped out in the night air.
Mid the darkened bulk of the big
house he saw a single small light chinking the door of the kitchen. He thought, with Nita still moving about.
He pondered what he should do next, now that he was free. He must get into the house somehow, see Janet and take her away. That was certain.
He regarded the lone light reflectively. Should he go boldly to the door and demand Janet?
Quickly he made his plans, and re-entered the barn. Snapping the lock heavily back, he groped on the floor for a tool. He could find none. This time, when he entered the house, he would be prepared.
Here was something hanging on the wall. Cold iron, which he grasped it, seemed quite heavy. It was a short iron bar.
With more confidence, he slid back
the bolt and stepped outside again.
The heavens were filled with stars,
and a crescent moon was riding high.
A beautiful night for a drive...
With Janet Lord at his side. He stood
there a moment, looking at the sky,
his mind full of tender thoughts of the girl he hoped to rescue from this queer house.
A snarl in the distance, and he distinguished an animal flying toward
him. In an instant he was back in the stable, the bolt tight against the door.
That dog again! He had made a lucky escape.
With the bar in his hand, he sided to the floor and sat down, to wait
until the beast was gone.
The dog was pawing the door wildly and growling. Again and again he jumped, and his heavy body
fell against the door with a thud.
I shall stay here, Blair thought,
until he goes. Then I shall go into the house.
A dull gray light was creeping into the stable... a light that seemed cold to Blair as he sat waiting. He shivered involuntarily, and watched
it sift through the big barn through several small high windows, illumin-
ing it so slightly that the stalls appeared gossamer things, things made
of dream stuff.
Six stalls he counted, and a door
at the far end, which when he made it out, he rose to examine. It was locked from the outside. Finding some old straps on the walls, he wrapped them around the knob and fastened them securely to a heavy nail near the door. To make his fortress still more impregnable, he jammed a shovel under the knob in buttress fashion. This done, he scrambled up the small ladder that led to the loft, and placed himself at one of the windows. The dog he could see plainly was lying at the door, his head between his paws.
The loft was empty. There was not even a wisp of hay on the bare rough floor.
He had a perfect view of the back of the house from his window. Evidently no one was up there yet.
In the east the sun was rising, a big golden ball, spreading broad bright ribbons through the green trees. He managed, after some maneuvering, to open the window
and drink in the fresh morning air.
It felt good in his lungs after the stuffy stable.
How long was that dog going to stay there? He must have been watching for several hours by now.
Blair decided to stay in the loft by the window. Up here he could watch the dog, and the house, too. If Janet came out, he could call to her.
Janet... did she know he was still here... or did she think he was gone? She must know he was still there.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WPA Field Agents Lay Program's Slowness to Administrative Policy

WASHINGTON—There was an unadvertised conference in the office of hustling Harry Hopkins
the other day that may result in something finally being done to galvanize the languishing $4,000-000,000 Work-Relief program.

The WPA chief had a group of
his field agents in to give confidential reports on what was taking place in their sections. The pictures they painted were gloomy.

Chief cause for delay in getting
men to work, they reported, were:
1. The Administration's policy of trying to force states and cities to pay for part of work-relief projects. Many communities are marking time,
convinced that the Federal government will be compelled to
"come across."

2. Widespread confusion and undercover sabotaging between the old FERA agencies and the newly-organized WPA units. Social workers in the former are
fearful of losing their jobs,
and are throwing monkey
wrenches into the WPA
machinery.

3. Protracted delays in getting Federal funds even after allocation by the President. Responsibility
for this was placed on the shoulders of Comptroller General McCarl, who sometimes took weeks to approve projects.

Hopkins promised early relief
on this last complaint. He promised states and localities a steady flow of funds once their projects were authorized.

On the other points he was less definite.

The policy of part payment by states and cities is the President's.
If Hopkins had his way, the Federal government would do all the financing.

On the well-rounded supporting cast of "The Glass Key," are Edward Arnold, Claire Dodd, Rosa-
lied Quill, Ray Milland and Guinn Williams.

The story revolves about Edward Arnold, the shrewd but honest political boss of a big city. When the son of the man whom he supports for Senate is murdered, Arnold's underworld enemies attempt to pin the crime on him.

Salesmanship

Representative George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts is noted among his friends for his right-fistedness, but there is a Washington newsboy who knows how to loosen his purse strings.

The bearded, rhy-poly Boston bachelor was hurrying into an office building opposite the Treasury
when the newsboy rushed up to him, held out a copy of a local afternoon paper.

Tinkham shook his head.
"But look," insisted the news-
boy, pointing to a picture of Tinkham on the front page.

"All right, give me one," said
Tinkham, and handed the boy fifteen cents.

Pension Administrator

By appointing John G. Winant
to be chairman of the new Social Security Board, Roosevelt makes
it twice that he has given an important New Deal job to a possible
Republican candidate against him
in 1936.

Once before, he made Winant
chairman of the Textile Labor Board under the NRA.

Reason for these selections
is first that Roosevelt and Winant are old friends, having known each other when one was Governor of New York and the other Governor
of New Hampshire; second,

Winant is an extremely able executive.

During his three terms in the New Hampshire capital he worked until two or three almost every morning. Fred Brown, now U. S.
Senator, but whom Winant de-
fated for the governorship in 1924, says:

"He made any other Governor,
past and present, look sick."

Winant is 46 years old, tall, Lin-colnesque, Republican, the richest man in the state, married to a wealthy woman, and founder of the Stable Money Association.

In New Hampshire he is called a "sucker." Almost anyone with a hard-luck story can get money out of him. Now, as head of the Social Security Board, he will administer
old age-pensions and social insurance in an effort to eliminate the human suffering which once touched his heart.

At least one New Deal experi-

Child's Tonsils Better

Kept Unless Infected

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IT WAS NOT LONG ago that it
was thought advisable for a child who was entering school for the first year, to have the
tonsils and adenoids removed,
on general principles. I believe the attitude of
even the most
radical nose and
throat men has changed on that point.

The subject
was discussed
last year before
our largest medical assemblage,
so we may assume that is the latest word on
the subject. One of these ways, and
therefore some of the indications for tonsil removal in children are:

1. Rheumatic fever, or heart disease from rheumatic fever, in which a tonsillar infection keeps the other trouble afloat.
2. The same thing applies to St.
Vitus dance (chorea) which is closely related to rheumatic fever.
3. Toxic malnutrition associated with repeated attacks of tonsillitis.
4. Repeated attacks of tonsillitis
with or without quinsy or peritonsil-lar abscess.
5. Abscess in the middle ear associated with tonsillar and adenoid infection.
6. Impaired hearing made worse by each attack of tonsillitis. This may manifest itself by dullness and inattention in school.
7. Chronic nose or chest trouble,
or both together, associated with definite infection of the tonsils.
8. Enlarged sore glands in the neck, associated with infected tonsils.

Note that emphasis has been put on the fact that these indications obtain IN CHILDREN.

For adults, there are different indications. In an adult, enlarged tonsils usually mean the presence of a residual infection, and that may cause a great many things, from arthritis to activity of the thyroid gland.

Reason for Size
There must be some reason for this large size and evident activity
in infancy and childhood, and the period of involution. It has been suggested that they act in some way
as ductless glands. In that case, it would be unwise to remove them
before they had done their work.

Again, they may have an important bearing on the production of immunity.

The tonsillar crypts are said to be tubes similar to test tubes, in which germs develop, producing toxins
which are absorbed and result in im-

Swedish Military Genius Trains Troops For Selassie; Maps Ethiopian Defense

General Eric Virgin
Primitive tribesmen ready to answer Ethiopia's call Trained defenders practice for impending Italian war

Stockholm, Sweden. — The probability of war between Italy and Ethiopia is discussed with interest in Sweden.

For more than a year one of the keenest military minds in Sweden, General Eric Virgin, has been a personal advisor to Emperor Haile Selassie. It is rumored that the emperor's military plans are largely the work of the Swedish general. The military school in Addis Ababa, begun by Swedish officers several years ago, is revolutionizing the half-wild Ethiopian army to the delight of the emperor, a fervent convert to European civilization.

Observed World War
General Virgin's record is one of lively participation in modern military problems. Thus during the World War he was one of the Swedish officers who acted as commanders to the Central Powers and followed the Austro-Hungarian army on three attacks in 1917. He was also leader of a group of neutral officers, who observed at the western front. Here he realized the growing importance of aerial warfare. Today he is an authority on the subject.

When the emperor of Ethiopia in 1933 requested the Swedish government to send him somebody to replace Dr. Johannes Kilmodin, another Swede, who for several years had been political counselor to the Negus, Virgin was selected as the right man. He had just finished two strenuous years as flying corps chief, modernizing the Swedish air force. The general evidently gave the emperor a high opinion of Swedish air men. Haile Selassie recently asked the Swedish government to lend him a number of aviators to be instructors in his expanding military school, but the request was refused. He was told that Sweden needs all her own men. But this country has not yet gone so far as to forbid the export of munitions to the troubled African state, as did her neighbor, Denmark, some time ago.

Swedes Still Know War
General Virgin is not the only "modern viking" to find a practical field for his military genius far from his peaceful homeland. For 125 years Sweden, in spite of a great tradition as a fighting nation, whose soldiers time and time again marched over continental battlefields, has kept her hands out of Europe's war mazes. The long peace has undoubtedly done her good, but it has not kept her young men from becoming excellent soldiers.

The blustering, adventure-seeking spirit would not die out. One finds many Swedish officers and engineers trying their luck all over the globe. It is a different kind of colonizing—not with battleships—but with high technical knowledge. For thirty years Swedes have worked in Iran (Persia), building railroads, organizing the police force and selling the Swedish automobile, Volvo. The latest bit of co-operation came this spring when six young officers traveled to Iran (Persia) to start a military school there on the pattern of the successful Ethiopian institution.

Land of Paradoxes
A queer lot of paradoxes comes out of Sweden—a king and the most highly socialized regime next to Soviet Russia's. Tons and tons of cannons and high explosives, from Bofors—and the Nobel peace prize from the same source. Refusals to join in the armaments race with declarations of keeping up neutrality—and a set of skilled military men to teach Africa and Asia Minor to fight Europe.

CIVIL SERVICE FOR RETIREMENT SYSTEM ADVISED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 29—The Ohio Government Survey today urged the State Teachers Retirement system to adopt civil service rules for clerical personnel, simplify its accounting system, and diversify investments in order to include U. S. bonds.

In the final section of the report on the Department of Education, the Sherrill committee said "generally the retirement system has been very efficiently administered" and "has effected an economic saving to the state in providing an efficient teaching staff."

The Survey reports that "average investment yield" of the funds in the teachers' retirement system, "was 4.24 per cent as of Feb. 1, 1935, a very remarkable performance." The purchase of U. S. securities is recommended "so that the portfolio will be still further diversified and provide an additional safety factor."

The teachers' retirement system was established in 1919 and has been operating since Sept. 1, 1920. All teachers employed in schools operated by public money are compelled to join the system. It provides a savings fund for teachers and a fund for retirement of teachers who became aged or disabled.

DAVEY WARNS OF VETO FOR MONEY BILLS

Will Refuse to Sign Any Measure Which Does Not Include His Budget Cuts.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 29.—Gov. Martin L. Davey today asserted he would veto any appropriation bill for the next biennium that did not fully include the $8,800,000 slashes he made in the last bill passed by the Legislature.

Sen. William D. Herner, chairman of the Senate Finance committee, has announced he has ready a bill for presentation to the Legislature that cuts $7,000,000 from the original bill. This measure falls short, however, by almost $2,000,000 of the Governor's action.

To pass this bill, the Governor said, the Legislature may as well plan on obtaining three-fifths majority, as he will veto the measure until it conforms with his budget slashes.

Called Sept. 16-17

The Governor announced the special session will be called for September 16 or 17th. The chief purposes of this call will be to provide funds for old age pensions for the balance of the year and to pass enabling legislation for the $20,000,000 welfare building program. He indicated that he will permit the Legislature to consider the appropriation bill if it is in shape by that date for consideration.

Informed of the contemplated increase in old age pension awards, the Governor said he would ask the Legislature to apply liquor store profits for that purpose. However, since the Division of Aid for the Aged plans to increase the rolls to 85,000, the sum of $1,350,000 will be needed for September alone, and over $5,500,000 for the balance of the year. Liquor profits for the rest of the year, including the present fund, will not amount to over $4,000,000. Thus the Legislature will have to raise an additional $1,500,000 if payments are to be made to the 85,000 estimated recipients.

COUNTY SCHOOL OPENINGS SET

Regular classes at Pickaway township school will open Tuesday morning, Sept. 3, according to an announcement Thursday by M. C. Warren, principal. A teachers meeting will be held at the school on Labor Day.

Bus drivers and pupils are to report at their usual time on Tuesday, Mr. Warren stated, and lunches will be served in the school cafeteria as usual.

Many Ashville residents believed a change would be made in the opening date of school in the village because of the Labor Day celebration. No change has been made, George McDowell, county superintendent of schools announced. Pupils are to report Sept. 2.

The Walnut-twp board of education plans to meet Monday night to select a music instructor, the only vacancy now open in the county school system.

The Ohio Water Service Company, furnishing water for fire protection to said City of Circleville, Ohio, being one of the creditors in said accounts owing in the sum of $19,413.52, and having made application to the Utilities Commission of the State of Ohio to be permitted to discount such indebtedness in said City of Circleville unless the account due and owing to it for service prior to January 1st, 1935 be paid, and said application being assigned for hearing before said Utilities Commission on August 13th, 1935, therefore.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CIRCLEVILLE, OHIO:

Section 1. That it is hereby declared by the Council of the City of Circleville that a necessity has arisen and now exists for the issuance of bonds in the sum of $16,000.00 pursuant to the consent of the Tax Commission of the State of Ohio granted July 31st, 1935, under and in accordance with the provisions of Senate Bill No. 96, whereby said bonds are to and shall be predicated upon the delinquent taxes and upon special assessments upon which the bonds have been paid which taxes and assessments are due and owing to said City of Circleville, Ohio, for payment.

NEW OPERATORS OF SCHOOL BUSES NEED APPLICATION

New drivers of county school buses will be the only drivers required to fill out applications this year to be filed with the county superintendent of schools.

The applications of the drivers last year cover a two year period and the physical examinations listed on the applications are practically the same as those given for chauffeur licenses, George McDowell, county superintendent, announced Thursday.

The bus tests made by the state highway patrol may be made at the school buildings this year. Mr. McDowell said, and drivers may expect these tests at any time.

The bureau of motor vehicles notified Mr. McDowell Thursday that 1935 license plates already issued will continue to be used and recognized for the balance of this registration year unless there has been a change of ownership. The new owners must apply for plates from the bureau.

New school buses, either publicly or privately owned, will be furnished gratis license plates through application to the bureau of motor vehicles. All drivers must be at least 21 years of age and registered chauffeurs.

QUEEN OF BELGIUM KILLED

ASTRID AUTO WRECK VICTIM; KING SUFFERS MINOR HURTS

Body of Swedish Princess, Mother of Three Small Children, Hurlled Against Tree as King Loses Control of Heavy Vehicle.

LUCERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 29.—For the second time in two years, tragedy struck the royal family of Belgium today when Queen Astrid, beautiful blonde princess of Sweden, was killed in an automobile accident which also resulted in serious injuries to her husband, King Leopold III.

The queen met her death when a massive, high powered car driven by the king himself skidded off the road near Kussnacht along Lake Lucerne.

She was thrown from the car. Her body hurtled through the air and crashed into the trunk of a huge tree overhanging the water's edge.

Her death was instantaneous.

It was just eighteen months ago that Leopold's father, the late King Albert, fell to his death while climbing a mountain peak in a range of the Ardennes mountains known as the Marche Des Dames.

As with his daughter-in-law, death came to him suddenly and accidentally. The grief Europe felt with the loss of Belgium's great wartime king was echoed with the loss of the young queen, whose democratic demeanor and flashing smile had endeared her to the nation which became hers by marriage and adoption.

King Leopold himself, who was driving the car when the accident occurred along a narrow tree bordered road, apparently was seriously injured.

The king was rushed to a hospital at Kussnacht, where preliminary examination indicated he had suffered a fracture of the jaw.

With his queen, he was hurled from the front seat of the low-slung, powerful car, which crashed head-on into a tree and, then plunged into the waters of Lake Lucerne.

The chauffeur, who was riding in the rear seat while King Leopold drove, also was thrown out of the car, but was believed to have escaped serious injury.

Taken to His Wife
But the young monarch, who on his coronation asked only to be permitted to continue the democratic rule which his father inaugurated, was painfully hurt. His head was cut severely and his broken jaw a cause of great pain.

His only thought, however, was to be near the body of his wife, still almost a bride, and when his injuries had been tended, he was taken to her side.

The body of the young queen has been rushed to the villa "Hassihorn" in the hamlet of Horn near Lucerne, where for the

INS FIRST WITH TRAGEDY REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—World-wide news gathering facilities of International News Service today resulted in another major "scoop" for that press association.

International News Service flashed to its member papers the death of Queen Astrid of Belgium at Lake Lucerne before any other press service had carried the story.

The INS flash was cleared to The Herald at 8:05 a. m., eastern standard time.

Ted Lewis' New Picture Booked Here On Sept. 15

Harry "Chic" Howard, manager of the Cliftona theatre, made an announcement Thursday that all Circleville has been waiting to hear. Ted Lewis and his new show, "Here Comes the Band," has been booked for a 3-day run at the Pinkney-st picture house starting Sept. 15.

Howard received confirmation Thursday morning of the dates.

While Ted has been in several shows, "Here Comes the Band" is reputed to be his best.

In the picture he is named Ted Lowry. In the supporting cast are Virginia Bruce, Ted Healy, Nat Pendleton, Harry Stockwell, Donald Cook, Spanky McFarland, Bert Roach and many others.

The picture was produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and directed by Paul Sloane. Songs include "Headin' Home," "Tender is the Night," "Roll Along Prairie Moon" and "You're My Thrill."

According to "The Motion Picture Herald," which reviews releases in the film capital, the picture is for man, woman and child. "It is not only satisfactory audience entertainment," the magazine says, "but in title, cast names, motivating story idea, substantiating specialties and unique production values, it provides a wealth of showmanship exploitation material."

In the yarn Happy and Piccolo (Ted Healy and Nat Pendleton) are a pair of taxi-driving doughboys. Ted Lowry (Ted Lewis) directed a military band during the war. Happy back home discovers Ollie Watts (Harry Stockwell), a young singer, whom he is convinced needs only a break to succeed. An audition is arranged with plenty of fun provided. A romantic twist with Ollie and Margaret (Virginia Bruce) adds the theme. Watts writes a song that is stolen from him but Happy, Piccolo and Ted scheme to recover it for him. A court room scene with negroes, Indians, hillbillies and others combining to aid Watts is a highlight with the song finally being recovered from the thieving publisher. The end is the usual one of hugs and kisses and a long happy life.

Healy and Pendleton provide the comedy. Ted introduces the new number, "You're My Thrill," and turns on with his classy band, while Stockwell, a newcomer and a real singer, scores with several other numbers.

OUTLAW GANG NOW HISTORY

John Hamilton, Last of Dillinger's Outlaws, Found In Illinois Grave.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Trained for the whole of the notorious Dillinger gang, was written in the big book of bad men at the department of justice today.

The "rubout" of the entire mid-west gang of bank robbers was proved beyond doubt when John Hamilton came back for a brief spell to disprove the adage, "dead men tell no tales."

Hamilton's body was found by

"G" men in an abandoned sand-pit in Kaneo, Ill., near Aurora, about 30 miles west of his old Chicago haunts. Above the rude grave was an amateurism placard bearing the legend: "Do Not Remove."

Thought Slain In 1934
Justice agents believe Hamilton was fatally shot in the spring of 1934, either at the gun battle at the Little Bohemia roadhouse near Rhineland, Wis., or in a subsequent gun battle at St. Paul.

All his pals in the Dillinger gang followed him to an untimely death at the hands of federal agents within the year.

John Dillinger, reputed chief of the gang went down in front of a Chicago movie house while attempting to pull his "rod."

LEGION RAPPED BY VET CHIEF

Van Zandt Blames American Legion for Failure to Obtain Bonus Payment.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Drums of discord rumbled today between the camps of the nation's two big veterans' organizations—the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Trouble has been brewing between the two for years. It flared into opposition during the recent bonus battle in congress. Today, it was out in the open, and bitter.

The Veterans of Foreign Wars under their national commander, James E. Van Zandt, signalled the opening of a ripping attack on the Legion with a lengthy statement charging the Legion commander, Frank Belgrano, and his colleagues with failure of a bill paying the soldiers' bonus.

This is to be followed by a national speaking tour which Van Zandt will conduct. The tour, it was learned, will open with an address in Findlay, Ohio.

FDR APPROVES FARM AID BILL

Frazier-Lemke Moratorium Is Signed; Protects Producer For Three Years.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—President Roosevelt today signed the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium bill.

The measure, designed to reduce farmers' overhead expenses, allow the property owners to turn over their assets to the courts, legally speaking, and then to pay a "reasonable rental" for three years. At the end of that time a new valuation would be placed on the property. The "reasonable rental" would be applied first to taxes.

As passed and signed by the president, the bill freezes mortgage foreclosures and protects the agricultural producer for the coming three years.

MANSFIELD, Aug. 29.—Mansfield's gas consumers were enriched today to the amount of $260,000 following rate refunds by the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., which was provided in an ordinance passed by city council and accepted by the company.

In addition to the reduced rates, the ordinance also called for a refund of more than $260,000 collected under bond by the utility in the last four years during the rate litigation.

More than 15,000 present and former consumers benefited. The utility reported it was unable to locate 550 other entitled to refunds totaling $1,800.

WIDOW TO RECEIVE ESTATE OF ROGERS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 29.—Mrs. Betty Blake Rogers, widow of Will Rogers, famed stage screen and radio comedian-philosopher, today had been named executor without bond in the will which Rogers signed only 12 days before he left on his fatal airplane vacation to Alaska with Wiley Post.

The petition for probate of the will was presented by Max Felix, attorney for Mrs. Rogers and her co-executors, Oscar Lawler, a close friend and J. K. Blake, brother-in-law of Rogers.

Although the estate which Rogers left in its entirety to his widow is expected to exceed $5,000,000 the petition for probate merely set out the value as "in excess of $10,000."

It was said $262,500 worth of aviation hazard insurance carried by the homespun philosopher with Lloyd's of London, probably will be paid to Mrs. Rogers sometime this week.

NEW PROJECTS BEING DRAWN

Deercreek Trustees File Two Requests; Six Projects Are Listed For City.

Deercreek-twp trustees filed two projects with the Federal Relief office here Thursday to be listed under WPA.

The projects include the widening, straightening and ditching of Walston road for a distance of one mile, and repainting of the township hall in Williamsport.

These projects are the first to be listed since the meeting of township officials Monday night in the courthouse with representatives of the district WPA office in Chillicothe.

Haste Is Urged
With the deadline for the WPA schedule as Sept. 12, all subdivision officials have been asked to file projects that will provide labor for men now on direct relief. Labor on the projects will be handled through the National Relief employment office. Projects must be in the Columbus WPA office on Sept. 12 and in the hands of Washington officials by Sept. 16, according to L. L. Henninger, Chillicothe district administrator. He explained the administration now has about two weeks to accomplish a task planned for a five week period.

Four county projects had been listed under PWA but Howard Sweetman, county surveyor, did not know what action would be taken on them until he had conferred with WPA officials about a transfer to the new program.

The projects included additions to the courthouse and county children's home and construction of two bridges, one over Pike hole near Whisler on the Hayesville-Adelphi road, and the other over Hargus creek on the Island road. Plans have not been prepared for the additions.

Six projects were listed under WPA in this county previous to the meeting Monday night. They include remodeling of the High-st school building; grading and filling the yard at Berger hospital; installation of a new floor and painting at the fire department; completion of the canal project, and the improvement of Crown-over road in Perry-twp and Thompson road in Deercreek-twp.

85,000 TO WITNESS PRO AND ALL-STAR GRID CONTEST

SOLDIER FIELD SCENE TONIGHT OF BIG FRACAS

Pros Somewhat Handicapped by Nagurski Injury, But Big Boy May Still Play.

CHICAGO, Aug. 29. Football will poke its head a bit prematurely over the sports horizon tonight when the Chicago Bears, western champions of the National professional league, engage an aggregation of collegiate all-stars. 1934 variety before some 85,000 enthusiasts at Soldier's field.

Under the glare of flood lights, the contest is designed to settle the question of supremacy between the type of football born of inspiration and the method nurtured by desire for coin of the realm. A similar contest last year failed to decide the issue when the Bears, then the world's champions, and the all-stars headed and bucked for four periods without crossing the goal line.

The Bears this year are perhaps the strongest football team in the world. Beaten by the New York Giants last year in the play-off game when the easterners played over the ice of a December afternoon in rubber-soled shoes, the Bears piled up a 21 to 0 score over the same team a few weeks later in California.

The professionals will be playing under two rather costly handicaps tonight. They will miss Bronko Nagurski, their regular fullback, who will not start the game, but who may get into it before the conclusion. Nagurski is suffering with minor injuries.

Collegiate rules will be in effect, and this will require that the Bears throw all their passes from a point five yards or more behind the line of scrimmage. The Bears will find this a deterrent since their best plays are executed with the short pass.

Manned by the cream of collegiate stars and using the Notre Dame system, the all-stars will present formidable opposition. A backfield comprising Manjias of Pittsburgh, Shepherd of Western Maryland, Nicheleini of St. Mary's and Kostka of Minnesota, is not likely to be pushed around with any great ease.

Stars on Bench
Then there will be Lund of Minnesota, Purvis of Purdue, "Cotton" Warburton of Southern California, Melinkovitch of Notre Dame and Hilliard of Texas to beat on the beef and brawn of the professional line.

In the absence of Nagurski, Ronzani and Brumbaugh, the Bears' starting backfield probably will comprise Masterson at quarter, Feathers and Sisk at the halves and Manders at fullback.

BIRDS AND HENS ONLY TEAMS ACTIVE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 29. Columbus and Toledo tangle at the latter's ball park in a double-header tonight while the rest of the American Association teams remain idle.

Indianapolis gained a half-game on the league-leading Minneapolis Millers. The Indians took a 3 to 0 decision from Milwaukee while the pace-setters enjoyed a holiday. The win placed the Hoosiers four games from the top.

Kansas City turned back Louisville, 4 to 3, being forced to come from behind after the Colonels staged a three-run rally in the fourth inning.

A big fourth inning in which they scored four runs gave the Toledo Mudhens a 3 to 1 win over St. Paul. Edmonds, Toledo first baseman, led the assault with three hits.

ON FISHING TRIP

Dr. G. L. Hitter and Russell Insler of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Leland Long, Columbus, leave Friday for a 10-day fishing trip to Ontario for muskies. The group plans to fish about 100 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

Cardinals Increase Lead Over League Contenders

NEW YORK, Aug. 28. After all, there must be a lot of accord in our Giants.

Bill Terry has said repeatedly they would not fold up this year as they did last, but if they haven't folded, then there are no pleats in an accordion.

We took Bill's word for it that they weren't folding when the Cards knocked them off and while a bit skeptical, we were ready to agree it must have been the heat or something when the Cubs also stopped them.

LONDON TEAM EASILY BEATS LOCAL SQUAD

Only Three of Local Team Win Matches; Number of Local Golfers Absent.

Circleville golfers, sadly weakened by the absence of five or six of their stars, lost an 11 1/2 to 27 1/2 match at London Wednesday afternoon. The match gives the local club an even break in four played this year, contests with Washington C. H., and London being won on the local course and lost away.

The absence of Dewey Black, Bent Hanson, Jim Evans, Dr. Phillips, Lou Vining, John Bragg and one or two others weakened the local team.

Only three members of the Pick-away team won their matches. Paul Hrobon, club professional, again shattered par to defeat Alan Kulp on both rounds gaining three points with his 71, made on combinations of 37-34. John Jenkins defeated Dr. W. A. Holman both rounds to win three points, and Glen Geib won one round and split the other with Harry Hiff to garner two and one-half points. The remainder of the local club's score was gained by Dave Courtright who split three points with Schlechty N. E. Reicheiderfer who won one point from Sidener, Sr., and Dr. G. R. Gardner who copped one-half point.

Other local golfers who made the trip and enjoyed the afternoon despite defeats were John Mader, Claude Kraft, Dr. D. V. Court-right, Dr. C. G. Stewart, F. E. Barnhill, J. D. Hummel, and Charles H. May.

Hrobon's card, which was one below par, follows:

HAUPTMANN'S LAWYER SAYS INFANT LIVES

Fischer Basing Defense On That Belief; Denies San Quentin Report.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 29. All efforts to obtain a new trial for Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted of kidnaping and murdering Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., are to be based on the assumption that the Lindbergh child is still alive, C. Lloyd Fischer, of Flemington, N. J., one of the Hauptmann defense staff said here today.

Fischer, here for conferences with Hauptmann's sisters, Mrs. Emma Glockner, and her attorney, Vincent Marco, declared it has always been his belief that the body identified as that of the Lindbergh child, was that of some other infant.

Denies Rumors

The Hauptmann attorney will go to San Francisco in a few days he said, but denied emphatically reports from New York to the effect that a convict in the San Quentin prison in California had supplied him with valuable evidence concerning the whereabouts of the Lindbergh child.

"I know absolutely nothing about any San Quentin convict," Fischer declared.

He refused to amplify his statement that an appeal for a new trial, if the New Jersey court of appeals denied the application now before it, would be based on the belief the Lindbergh child is alive.

"It has always been my contention that the Lindbergh child is alive," was all Fischer would say, besides declaring the case would be taken to the U. S. supreme court if necessary.

"Brains" of Gang

Hamilton lived to be 35 years old, and was the senior partner and reputed brains of the Dillinger gang. He was perhaps the most thorough and intelligent bank robber in the country, according to J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the justice department division of investigation.

He did not rely on machine produced maps. He made his own and for the front. "Right away," was Gibbons' reply and arrangements were made for him to sail Saturday on the Italian liner Rex for Naples.

Now 49 years old, the rugged six-foot Gibbons accepted the assignment to cover another war as matter-of-factly as if he were told by his city editor to do a story on a fire.

Gibbons knows what war is like. He has paid a price for his military experience. His left eye was shot away and his left arm drilled twice by German machine gun bullets in Belleau Wood, near Chateau-Thierry, in June 1918, during the World War when he was one of eighteen correspondents attached to G. H. Q. of the American Expeditionary Force.

Feeling of Regret

"I realize the news possibilities of this Ethiopian assignment but at the same time I have a feeling of regret as I pack up to go on it," said Gibbons today. "I can never forget the cheer that went up along the front lines and, in fact, around the world when the Armistice was signed on November 11, 1918. I can remember vividly how sick and tired everybody was of war."

"So now it's rather sad to contemplate that Italian boys who were born along about that time in 1918 are going down to Ethiopia to meet the fate that befell so many heroic young soldiers in the war that was to end all wars."

marked every mile of the territory in which the gang was to operate. He left nothing to chance, but forced his men to rehearse their proposed robbery for weeks and studied every possibility for escape.

"In spite of this we got him," Hoover commented.

Hamilton was wanted for the killing of Patrolman William Shanley at Chicago Dec. 14, 1933. He also was reputed to have been the leader of the gang which escaped from the Indiana state penitentiary at Michigan City, and freed John Dillinger from the Allen-co jail at Lima, O.

It was during this delivery that Sheriff Jesse Sarber was killed.

With Hamilton in these daring exploits were such characters as Harry Pierpont, Russell Clark, Charles Makley, and Edward Shouse.

past few weeks the royal couple had been vacationing.

His head swathed in bandages and still dazed by the tragedy, King Leopold walked painfully Leopold lost control of the car while rounding a sharp bend on the narrow road which runs along the bank of the calm blue lake.

Peasants residing in the tiny hamlet of Merli Chachen, which borders the famous body of water, were the first on the scene.

They picked up the shattered body of the queen and attempted to aid Leopold and his chauffeur. It was apparent immediately that Astrid, whose head struck the trunk of the tree with terrific impact, had died immediately from a fractured skull.

The accident occurred in broad daylight shortly before 10 o'clock in the morning. The royal couple had left their villa early, planning a ride through the beautiful countryside. While Leopold is not regarded as a reckless driver, he enjoys driving fast and the car was believed proceeding at a rapid pace when the accident happened.

Vacationing in Alps

For the past few weeks, Queen Astrid and King Leopold had been vacationing in the Swiss and Italian Alps. Not long ago they made a difficult ascent of one of the Dolomite peaks, which the late King Albert himself always liked to climb, and visited a stone memorial placed on the spot to commemorate the monarch's climb.

It was in Switzerland that Leopold, then crown prince, learned of the death of his father in February, 1934.

Switzerland, closely akin to Belgium in language, keenly felt the shock of the tragedy. Queen Astrid was a popular visitor, her ready smile and democratic attitude endearing her to all who met her. In Geneva, where world statesmen are gathering for the League of Nations council session summoned to consider the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, news of her sudden death came as a great shock.

Leopold and Astrid were married in Brussels amid great pomp on November 10, 1926. At the time of her marriage, Astrid was 21. She came to Belgium direct from her native Stockholm, where her many years of royal life had been spent. She was the daughter of the King of Sweden. Three children survive her. It was left to King Leopold to seek to break the news of Queen's death to his five-year-old son, who with the eight-year-old Princess Josephine accompanied his parents to Switzerland. The couple's youngest child, Prince Albert, fourteen months old, remained in Brussels. through the gates of the estate and gazed upon the features of Astrid. He bore up bravely, but the enormity of the tragedy, following as it did upon the loss of his father, obviously affected him greatly. The only witness to the tragedy was the chauffeur himself, but his own injuries and the shock of the accident prevented him from telling a coherent story. It was apparent, however, that King

General Eric Virgin. Primitive tribesmen ready to answer Ethiopia's call. Trained defenders practice for impending Italian war.

An Authority on Aerial Attack and Combat

STOCKHOLM, Sweden. — The probability of war between Italy and Ethiopia is discussed with interest in Sweden.

For more than a year one of the keenest military minds in Sweden, General Eric Virgin, has been a personal adviser to Emperor Haile Selassie. It is rumored that the emperor's military plans are largely the work of the Swedish general. The military school in Addis Ababa, begun by Swedish officers several years ago, is revolutionizing the half-wild Ethiopian army to the delight of the emperor, a fervent convert to European civilization.

Observed World War. General Virgin's record is one of lively participation in modern military problems. Thus during the World War he was one of the Swedish officers who acted as counselors to the Central Powers and followed the Austro-Hungarian army on three attacks in 1917. He was also leader of a group of neutral officers, who observed at the western front. Here he realized the growing importance of aerial warfare. Today he is an authority on the subject.

When the emperor of Ethiopia in 1935 requested the Swedish government to send him somebody to replace Dr. Johannes Kilmodin, another Swede, who for several years had been political counselor to the Negus, Virgin was selected as the right man. He had just finished two strenuous years as flying corps chief, modernizing the Swedish air force. The general evidently gave the emperor a high opinion of Swedish air men. Haile Selassie recently asked the Swedish government to lend him a number of aviators to be instructors in his expanding military school, but the request was refused. He was told that Sweden needs all her own men. But this country has not yet gone so far as to forbid the export of munitions to the troubled African state, as did her neighbor, Denmark, some time ago.

And you'll get no end of joy out of the cozily-draped hat that adjusts itself so nicely to your individual type. ## Swedes Still Know War

General Virgin is not the only "modern viking" to find a practical field for his military genius far from his peaceful homeland. For 125 years Sweden, in spite of a great tradition as a fighting nation, whose soldiers time and time again marched over continental battlefields, has kept her hands out of Europe's war messes. The long peace has undoubtedly done her good, but it has not kept her young men from becoming excellent soldiers.

The bustling, adventure-seeking spirit would not die out. One finds many Swedish officers and engineers trying their luck all over the globe. It is a different kind of colonizing — not with battleships — but with high technical knowledge. For thirty years Swedes have worked in Iran (Persia), building railroads, organizing the police force and selling the Swedish automobile, Volvo. The latest bit of co-operation came this spring when six young officers traveled to Iran (Persia) to start a military school there on the pattern of the successful Ethiopian institution.

Land of Paradoxes

A queer lot of paradoxes comes out of Sweden — a king and the most highly socialized regime next to Soviet Russia's. Tons and tons of cannons and high explosives from Bofors — and the Nobel peace prize from the same source. Refusals to join in the armaments race with declarations of keeping up neutrality — and a set of skilled military men to teach Africa and Asia Minor to fight Europe.

On 'New Deal' Dollar

CIVIL SERVICE FOR RETIREMENT SYSTEM ADVISED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 29 — The Ohio Government Survey today urged the State Teachers Retirement system to adopt civil service rules for clerical personnel, simplify its accounting system, and diversify investments in order to include U. S. bonds.

In the final section of the report, the Department of Education, the Special committee said "generally the retirement system has been very efficiently administered" and "has effected an economic saving to the state in providing an efficient teaching staff."

The Survey points that "average investment yield" of the funds in the ten-year retirement system "was 4.2 per cent as of Feb. 1, 1935, a very remarkable performance." The purchase of U. S. securities is recommended "so that the portfolio will be still further diversified and provide an additional safety factor."

The teachers' retirement system was established in 1919 and has been operating since Sept. 1, 1926. All teachers employed in schools operated by public money are compelled to join the system. It provides a savings fund for teachers and a fund for retirement of teachers who have become aged or disabled.

WEY WARNS VETO FOR MONEY BILLS

Will Refuse to Sign Any Measure Which Does Not Include His Budget Cuts.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 29.—Gov. Martin L. Davey today asserted he would veto any appropriation bill for the next biennium that did not fully include the $8,800,000 slashes he made in the last bill passed by the Legislature.

Sen. William D. Herner, chairman of the Senate Finance committee, has announced he has ready a bill for presentation to the Legislature that cuts $7,000,000 from the original bill. This measure falls short, however, by almost $2,000,000 of the Governor's action.

To pass this bill, the Governor said, the Legislature may as well plan on obtaining three-fifths majority, as he will veto the measure until it conforms with his budget slashes.

Called Sept. 16-17

The Governor announced the special session will be called for September 16 or 17th. The chief purpose of this call will be to provide funds for old age pensions for the balance of the year and to pass enabling legislation for the $20,000,000 welfare building program. He indicated that he will permit the Legislature to consider the appropriation bill if it is in shape by that date for consideration.

Informing of the contemplated increase in old age pension awards, the Governor said he would ask the Legislature to apply liquor store profits for that purpose. However, since the Division of Aid for the Aged plans to increase the rolls to 85,000, the sum of $1,350,000 will be needed for September alone, and over $5,500,000 for the balance of the year. Liquor profits for the rest of the year, including the present fund, will not amount to over $4,000,000. Thus the Legislature will have to raise an additional $1,500,000 if payments are to be made to the state estimated recipients.

COUNTY SCHOOL OPENINGS SET

Regular classes at Pickaway township school will open Tuesday morning, Sept. 3, according to an announcement Thursday by M. C. Warren, principal. A teachers meeting will be held at the school on Labor Day.

Bus drivers and pupils are to report at their usual time on Tuesday, Mr. Warren stated, and lunches will be served in the school cafeteria as usual.

Many Ashville residents believed a change would be made in the opening date of school in the village because of the Labor Day celebration. No change has been made, George McDowell, county superintendent of schools announced. Pupils are to report Sept. 2.

The Walnut-twp board of education plans to meet Monday night to select a music instructor, the only vacancy now open in the county school system.

ures on the city's sidewalk project and expect to submit the program to WPA. They hope to have the plans and lists fully completed before the end of this week.

Circleville also expects to ask WPA aid on the removal of the car tracks in Court-st from Ohio-st to the corporation line. Council recently passed an ordinance appropriating $10,000 as the city's share of the material costs. County commissioners have expressed their willingness to stand a like portion of the material expense and appeal will be made to the state highway department for the balance. The material cost for the projects will amount to about $20,000.

Under the projects so far submitted less than 100 men would be supplied work. John W. Graham, chief engineer of this district, told subdivision officials Monday night. He urged them to list at once all worthwhile projects.

NEW OPERATORS OF SCHOOL BUSES NEED APPLICATION

New drivers of county school buses will be the only drivers required to fill out applications this year to be filed with the county superintendent of schools. The applications of the drivers last year cover a two year period and the physical examinations listed on the applications are practically the same as those given for chauffeur licenses. George McDowell, county superintendent, announced Thursday.

The bus tests made by the state highway patrol may be made at the school buildings this year. Mr. McDowell said, and drivers may expect these tests at any time.

The bureau of motor vehicles notified Mr. McDowell Thursday that 1935 license plates already issued will continue to be used and recognized for the balance of this registration year unless there has been a change of ownership. The new owners must apply for plates from the bureau.

New school buses, either publicly or privately owned, will be furnished gratis license plates through application to the bureau of motor vehicles. All drivers must be at least 21 years of age and registered chauffeurs.

Ducks don't vote. T. H. president, American Wild Life Institute, when asked if any political motive lay behind Institute's co-operation with federal government.
